A man was killed and a woman is in critical condition in hospital after they were extricated from this car which smashed headlong into a rock abutment at Douglas and Blanshard early Sunday morning. Tire burn marks left by the car ran straight for about 100 yards over boulevards and a traffic island into the rock face. (See story page 13).

A flip of a coin decided it.

He had his choice of attending a teachers' convention at nearby Kelowna, or coming here to attend a sitting of the legis-lature and talk to Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

All the Conservative seats are vulnerable. Social Credit may obtain more of these than the Liberals because they are basically rural ones

Sharp Contrasts

Several important factors will affect the outcome. Firstly, there is the question of the pronounced "candidate orienstead of emphasizing party or leader, the public is expressing its vote intentions in terms of candidates. This contrasts sharply with the Montreal situation where, for the most part, party is king.

This is one of the most fascinating aspects of Quebec o-litics and, in some ways, epi-tomizes the failure of the Liberals who, while in power federally in this province from 1891 until 1958, never managed (if they bothered trying) to inculcate in the public any at-tachment to their party on grounds of program or issues. Instead, they emphasized the personalities of their "great men" to such an extent that, when they passed from the scene (as inevitably they had to), there was nothing left to. to), there was nothing left to

Back to the Macdonald Plan

APART ENTIRELY FROM serious public concern and legislative debate over funds required to meet day-to-day university needs Education minister Leslie Peterson's most recent statement on university and college development implies widespread implementation of the Macdonald report.

The minister says, in effect, that enabling legislation is coming in to provide for four universities giving four-year courses or better—at U.B.C., Victoria, the Lower Fraser Valley and, in a private institution, at Nelson-as well as two-year colleges in the Okanagan, Kootenays and Vancouver.

The minister also says provision will be made to supply required funds for immediate needs from consolidated revenue.

There is, however, a very clear statement from Mr. Peterson that great provincial economic expansion and new federal aid will be required to finance the whole concept detailed by Dr. Macdonald. No provision is made in present estimates to translate the recommendations into immediate actuality.

The provincial government has not, of course, in its pocket the multi-million dollar bankroll required to guarantee completion of the British Columbia higher education program drawn up by the U.B.C. president. Such a bankroll is not required at this stage. Universities and colleges do not spring up overnight, like mushrooms. Victorians, who have noted exceptionally fast development at Gordon Head and at Lansdowne in the last two years, realize that planning and construction alone take time. Hence, if sufficient funds are made available out of consolidated revenue to carry along the early stages of required work, the program need not be seriously delayed, if it is delayed at all.

Certainly the most recent statement of intentions from Mr. Peterson marks a different approach from what the public had taken to be the government's first reaction to the Macdonald report. Mr. Peterson says his earlier remarks were 'misconstrued." His later announcements should not be. He is not promising that the new university in the Fraser Valley, or the new colleges in the interior and at Vancouver are going to be functioning in a couple of years. What he is saying is that steps are being taken to make them a are being taken to make them a possibility when, or if, the required FROM OTTAWA funds become available.

Trouble on the Roof

PAKISTAN APPEARS HAPPY with its newly-negotiated border agreement fixing the boundary gram. growth to defence and thereby slow down Mr. Nehru's development program. between Red China and the northern tier of Pakistani-occupied Kashmir. Red China appears enigmatic. India, for several reasons, is deeply apprehensive.

Under the pact, Red China will get 2,050 square miles of the 3,400 square miles in dispute, Pakistan 1,350. By the terms each has yielded certain areas it had occupied. But Pakistan's satisfaction may be less attributable to the actual shares involved in the division than to the fact that Red China was militarily in a position to take much more.

India's fears are readily understood. The agreement takes the heat off Pakistan on its northern frontier—at least for the time being—when the Andian forces on the Pakistan - India cease-fire line in Kashmir are diverted northward to confront the Chinese.

Moreover, India has little confidence in the duration of the truce with China in those disputed Kashmir regions which India claims, She sees Pakistan freed from tensions to devote more attention to Kashmir while she, India, is under double pressure.

In some quarters it is even asked if all the Sino-Pakistani pact has been divulged, or if it contains a secret understanding by which Red China and Pakistan will, at some future date, carve up Kashmir between them.

Under these circumstances India's government is making new demands on its own people for "defence against the dragon." Those demands include financing 1963-64 defence at triple the $600,000,000 of recent years.

This, observers point out, accomplishes one of the purposes of the Chinese thrusts against India—to divert money from India's economic

One of the results of these dangerous manoeuvres on the roof of the world should be to drive Indians closer together in a greater unity against the threat of the invader. But even this impulse is not as straightforward as it seems. Within India itself new questions are being raised about the father image of Nehru, questions which invited a reassessment by the west.

According to Saville R. Davis, writing in the Christian Science Monitor, "Mr. Nehru is not, as he was often described, a man forced by circumstances to be neutral but secretly a stout friend of the West. He is not just a brilliant product of English university education who found it hard to readjust to India. He is, on the contrary, profoundly distrustful of Western civilization and does not want it for India.

Furthermore, says Mr. Davis, when the Chinese attack came "Mr. Nehru had to be compelled to take a stand against the Chinese by public opinion and the political leaders, around him. He obviously did not in its approach to the West from the attitude reported in the streets of Delhi. There, according to re-port, prevailing sentiment is re-vealed in the words: "We have endured austerity to support our plans so that our children can have a better way of life. We will give more so that freedom does not perish. But we must and will now Losing Appeal have a resolute leadership.'

This is part of the background against which a high-powered Indian mission will visit London and Washington later this month to dis-

The Sino-Pakistan border accord should emphasize that decision.

Laid On Too Thick

SINCE SOVIET OUTBURSTS against the West are frequently counterpunches against some real fancied onslaught, one wonders what caused the most recent dia-tribe to appear in a Moscow newspaper. Two Russian army officers, writing in Red Star, are quoted in Tass with charges that the United States is using poison gases against helpless men and women in southern

Hundreds of persons have perished assert the spokesmen, many cattle have died. And they proceed to claim that Americans "chuckling with satisfaction" at the

"painful agonies of South Vietnamese women and children."

The last sentence, of course, sets the thing in perspective. It at once measures the content of the accusa-tions and the intended purpose of the two accusers. What might be developed into a plausible—although extremely far-fetched—allegation on military grounds, immediately becomes farcical when the picture of fiends chuckling at the agonies of women and children is raised.

Tass and its contemporary, Red Star, which is the organ of the Soviet defence ministry, have overdone it again.

What impresses informed Britons is what impresses informed Britons is the trend of intra-Commonwealth trade since the Montreal conference which followed Mr. Diefenbaker's famous "diversion" proposal. In 1957, of Britain's total 'trade, 37 per cent was with the Commonwealth: in 1961 — well before British industrialists had become British industrialists had begun anticipate Common Market membership in their business decisions - that share had shrunk to 32½ per cent.

There is no pretence in London that the Macmillan government ever pos-sessed any glittering alternative to the Brussels policy. The alternative of necessity is the world market which includes the market of The Six.

Confronted by the Common Market tariff barrier, the British propose to go over it or under it, mobilizing to that end all their industrial and trading skills. Denied an answer in Brussels, they intend to seek it in Britain through greater industrial efficiency and lower

It is possible that we shall hear talk, during the present election, of another Commonwealth conference as a means of opening new doors for Canadian exporters. Such a conference might well be embarrassing for Canadian delegates. The British could, indeed, offer a guarantee of the free access we already enjoy. In return they would expect some concessions. Britons, presumably, would go as far as the titled newspaper writer who, after brooding on recent events, an-nounced the breathless finding that, after all, Joan of Arc was a witch.

One interesting development is the advocacy by a number of influential Britons of a "freer trading club." This would be open to any country interested in finding a way around the de Gaullist veto. The difficulty is that, while a free trade area is legal within the curious rules of GATT, a freer trading area is not. The answer in logic should be a charge in the rules. a change in the rules, but this would be highly dangerous. Mr. de Gaulle might welcome an adventure in un-scrambling trade omelettes and the end might be worse than the beginning.

Pragmatic Approach

The British approach to Commonwealth trade is likely to be highly pragmatic. There is some interest in bilateral talks—indeed, negotiations with Australia are being currently planned. (In 1958, Australia took 41 per cent of her imports from Britain; in 1962 only 30 per cent). The point which must be emphasized, however is that in any emphasized, however, is that in any such talks it will be the Australians (or Canadians) who find themselves on the defensive. ### IN FOR ITS 200,000 MILE INSPECTION

Will this be possible with your present car? Perhaps, but it's not too likely.

But it is done frequently with the Mercedes-Benz 220 Series, and right here in Canada, too. The 220S is built to take it . . . to smile at the miles and the years. You've never known such driving pleasure, so few repair bills.

Decide today in favor of long-term driving satisfaction: drive the world-famous Mercedes-

San Juan Nets Chief Problem

Concerned over the decline in salmon catches by sports fishermen in the past few years, the Amalgamated Con-servation Society is waging a campaign to obtain a more equitable share of coho and spring salmon for sportsmen and to protect the future of B.C. salmon fishing.

Representing 12 Lower Island organizations, members of the society have drawn up a list of proposals they believe would benefit the salmon fishery.

These proposals have been incorporated in a brief, presented to J. Angus MacLean, federal minister of fisheries, and later distributed to almost 300 interested individuals and organizations.

Through the brief, the society hopes to make the fisheries chief and many others better acquainted with the problems of sports fishermen on the B.C. coast.

Because of the widespread interest of Island anglers in the ACS campaign, The Daily Times is printing the brief in

Here is the second installment:

NET FISHING IN SAN JUAN

The net fishing in the San Juan Strait areas is in our opinion the most important problem effecting the area fished by Lower Vancouver Island sports salmon fishermen.

The decline of coho salmon on the lower coast of Van-couver Island during the past three years was climaxed last fall when virtually no coho appeared in waters from Port Renfrew to Sidney. This decline became apparent after heavy pressure from net fishermen in the San Juan area during the past six years. Department of Fisheries reports disclose a large catch of coho salmon was harvested by commer cial net fishermen last season. A total coho catch of 3.6 million, the highest commercial harvest since 1951 was recorded in 1962, according to fisheries figures just released, while the 1962 sports coho catch in Areas 19 and 20 was one of the lowest ever recorded.

Many of the net fishermen claim the fish they were harvesting were American coho. If these claims are true, then what has happened to the Canadian coho?

The area where the net fishing pressure is heaviest is a milling ground for the coho salmon. These fish may stay for several days or even weeks. The coho salmon are subject to pressure on a 24-hour basis for three or four days a week. A large part of the school is harvested and the remainder scattered to regroup during the days the net fishing is closed. When the fish gather again, the operation is repeated. Constant net pressure in this coho gathering area is allowing very few surface fish through the solid wall of nets when nature moves the fish on the last part of their spawning run.

Restrictive gillnet sizes have been in force in all other coastal waters (60 mesh and 200 fathoms) while in the San Juan area (90 mesh and 300 fathom) nets are allowed. Seine boats are allowed 200 fathoms in all other coastal waters and 300 fathoms in Juan de Fuca Strait. In all other coastal areas power skiffs are not allowed however, they are operated in this area. The heavy exploitation of these coho and spring salmon runs appears very short sighted.

We would therefore recommend that restrictive net sizes as in other coastal waters and a three-mile offshore closure for net fishing be imposed in Juan de Fuca Strait (Areas 19 and 20) and as soon as the sockeye and pink runs have passed their peaks, and it is no longer practical to continue netting these fish from an economic standpoint, a complete net closure must be imposed to assure the sports fishermentheir share of salmon.

Monte Roberts

A constituent expresses great surprise and considerable dismay at the fact that this space has contained no mention of the Society for Indecency of Naked Animals—or is it the Society for the Prevention of Indecency of Naked Animals?

It appears this Society turned up in the news the other day when some kindly soul left it $500,000 to promote the cause of getting clothes on poor naked domestic animals. The Society, which claims to have 50,000 members, takes a dim view of dogs, cats, and other four-footed friends going around and about the countryside and the city side with nary a stitch of clothing to cover their nakedness.

The aforementioned surprised and dismayed constituent is also just a wee bit belligerent.

He CHALLENGES me to get something into this space about the Society and its attitude toward naked animals. Regretfully, I must decline the challenge. This despite the fact my constituent has given me lead by suggesting what could be accomplished on behalf of the national economy.

The constituent suggested thousands of dollars could be put into circulation, buying corsets for horses, Daks slacks for yaks, pink ribbon bows for little does, fancy pants for elephants, Dutch clogs for dainty dogs, and, of course, a pair of spats for pussy cats.

And he wants me to take it from there

Five-Foot-Eights and Over Are Not Really Martians By PENNY SAVER

At long last dress manufacturers have realized that girls few inches above average in height are not really monsters from outer space. Perhaps it is the research in outer space that has brought about this revolution—I don't know.

What I do know, being one of those five-foot-eight-and-over gals, is that it used to be humiliating to go shopping in a store specializing in tall girls' ready-to-wear.

First of all the clothes used to be at least a foot too long and the styles looked like something you might like to drape over a naked telephone pole. Any resemblance to current fashion was purely coincidental.

But attention all tall gals! "It ain't necessarily so,"

The store where Penny shopped had a rack of casual and two-piece dresses that, if I may say so without offending the manager, looked like the smartest outfits in the shop.

The lengths were a little longer than Penny requires, but, they were not by any means hugging my ankles as in days of yore. A quick hem job, not an overhaul, is all they

The styles were classic but chic and prices, moderate. One in particular that caught Penny's eye was a yellow and white stripped seersucker shirt waist style except for the collarless round neckline. Prico $22.95.

Another was a brown shantung dress with jacket that would see you through almost any daytime or after five occasion. The price is $35 and you can order the same style in other shade

A blue linen trimmed with white piping at $19.95 and a pale blue and white cotton mesh at $24.95 are only a few more of the tall girl designs available in sizes 11-18.

If you are five-foot-eight or over phone Penny at 382-3131.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

What is Righard Nixon really like? We'll really never know even though he guested with Jack Paar trolled killing to preserve animals and grazing land is Friday. The former U.S. vice-president was described scientific game management:

join Paar again.

In a way, it was enjoyable to listen to the man who probably finished his political career last fall. His views cannot be ignored for he was known as an astute politician in his Washington days. He took the opportunity to criticize President Kennedy for his handling of the Rey of clear.

This system is not contined to the African continent alone, Come home and look at the annual buffalo slaughter in Elk Island National Park between Vegreville and Edmonton, Alberta. Man has upset the balance of nature and therefore must tend the wild animals as he would tend his crops.

The documentary was excellent and the message clear. join Paar again. President Kennedy for his handling of the Bey of clear. Pigs invasion of Cuba.

Wanton killing of wild animals is deplorable. Con as warm, affable and approachable by reporters who talked with him in Victoria [ast fall.

After he lost the gubernatorial race to Edmond Brown in California he vented his spleen against the American press. He and Jack Paar have that much in common. What Nixon has not got is a weekly television show to air his views. The next best thing was to join Paar again.

Scientific game management.

This is the story ABC brought viewers with The treplaceables on Close Up Thursday. The show focused on the problem of saving Africa's wild life.

The national parks established are the only places wild animals have a chance for survival. But, the arrator pointed, our, protection has become their agreetest hazard. It is horrible to, watch them shooting large built elephants, fleet-footed gazelles and other animals with, what seemed, abandon.

This system is not confined to the African continue.

The Democratic administration could come in for more nationwide criticism when Senator Barry Gold. Garland, Jerry Lewis and Danny Kaye as a weekly water (Rep. Arizona) joins Paar March 22. I some television star next season. Bing made a pitch for how get the feeling Paar has very little use for the sponsors on a closed-circuit telecast. He would head a weekly anthology.

ROYAL BANK TUITION LOAN?

It can make all the difference!

These University Tuition Loans keep the door to higher education open to students who would otherwise have to drop out. They provide up to $1,000 a year, through four years. And they are available on unusually liberal terms and on a relatively flexible basis. In special cases, repayment may be extended beyond the four-year university period.

You will find your Royal Bank manager fully aware of the problems created by the high cost of higher education, and ready to give you every possible help in carrying out those all-important plans for your child's professional or other training.

Loans are usually made to parents, guardians or sponsors of students entering Canadian colleges or universities.

ROYAL BANK TUITION LOAN?

It can make all the difference!

These University Tuition Loans keep the door to higher education open to students who would otherwise have to drop out. They provide up to $1,000 a year, through four years. And they are available on unusually liberal terms and on a relatively flexible basis. In special cases, repayment may be extended beyond the four-year university period.

You will find your Royal Bank manager fully aware of the problems created by the high cost of higher education, and ready to give you every possible help in carrying out those all-important plans for your child's professional or other training.

Loans are usually made to parents, guardians or sponsors of students entering Canadian colleges or universities.

A folder describing Royal Bank Tuition Loans is available at any branch.
